In my Hi-Fi prototype, I focused on coordinating the colors of the page with the consistent colors throughout the website. I decreased the color value of different elements based on their importance to contrast with the white background. The receipt display is important, so it is in a lower value compared to other elements. The most important, checkout button has the lowest value, prompting the user to click on it. Different from my previous design, I changed the color of the list view, by giving the list items a beige background. I think this way it is easier for the user to see the borders between each individual item.
